Lead: The last Arts and Sciences advisor at SIUE, Justin Huff, resigned on January 9th, 2023, leaving many students and professors concerned about the future impacts this situation will have. Madison Lewis has more.

Lewis: The SIUE Arts and Sciences department was surprised to find out that their last advisor, Justin Huff, resigned at the beginning of the semester, leaving hundreds of faculty and students wondering how to fix this problem. John Stauffer voices his concerns related to how this will affect his future academics.

John...RUNS 10 sec OUT: I'M JUST REALLY NERVOUS

Lewis: Currently, there have been temporary advisors providing advising walk-in sessions and appointments to students in the Arts and Sciences department. These temporary advisors are not familiar with the mass comm department, so this may cause issues with taking the right classes to stay on track for graduation. Professor Atwood recommends how mass comm students can navigate through this situation.

Atwood...RUNS 14 sec OUT: WHAT I WOULD DO IS

Lewis: Huff's resignation shocked the Arts and Sciences department, but with the advice from professors like Atwood, many students are determined to keep advancing through their academic careers. This is Madison Lewis reporting for MC 204.
